BACKGROUND REPORT

Al Conner is a local author and historian whose work has been critical in preserving the history of Stafford County for future generations. He has worked as a military historian since 1995 and has published extensively on multiple aspects of military history.

He published A History of Our Own: Stafford County, Virginia, the first complete chronicle of the County from prehistoric times to the present. He donated the proceeds of that book to the Stafford Museum to help further preserve Stafford's history.

His most recent book is Seizing Destiny: The Army of the Potomac's "Valley Forge" and the Civil War Winter that Saved the Union, which is available on Amazon. Mr. Conner is donating all the proceeds to the Stafford Civil War Park.

He is a life member of the Stafford County Historical Society, and served on the County's Historical Commission from 1989 until 1999. He is also a member of the Stafford County Historical Society's "The Keepers of the Knowledge Program," which recognizes individuals "Whose dedication, special witness, and enduring contributions are a vital link in recording and understanding our local, regional and national history."

Al Conner is a member of numerous historical bodies and trusts in the Commonwealth, including the Central Virginia Battlefields Trust; Northern Neck Historical Society; and the Fredericksburg Forum.

Proposed Proclamation P16-16 commends Albert Z. Conner for his prodigious contributions to the preservation of Stafford's history.
